THE UNION ARMY ON JAMES RIVER—THE EVACUATION AND DESTRUCTION OF THE WHITE HOUSE—THE FALL OF RICHMOND AT HAND—FULL AND GRAPHIC ACCOUNT OF THE THREE DAYS' FIGHTING.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore American. WHITE HOUSE, June 28.

The events transpiring at this point, and in the army before Richmond, during the past four days, have been of such varied character and thrilling interest that I scarcely know where to begin or end the record, in order to make it all understandable to the general reader. Many who were eye-witnesses to these movements have fied off panic-stricken, fully convinced that the whole army before Richmond has been destroyed, and that General McClellan has been out-witted, out-generaled, out-flanked and "driven to the wall," where he promised to place the enemy. The evacuation of White House was to them an inexplicable ing on the right wing, as early as Tuesday, and that large numbers of vessels had left the York and Pamunky rivers and were forbidden to approach the front as early as back with great loss. There is poor generalship somewhere. If numbers are wanted, why are they not called for by the Government? It is an easy matter to put any number of troops wanted in the field. The places now occupied by Federal troops can that point, which I have every reason to be-be held by raw recruits. At the White House, on Wednesday matters were progressing as usual, with the exception that there had been a check in the exception that there had been a check in the landing of stores of all descriptions, whilst those on the laudings were being rapidly loaded in wagons and moved off towards the left flank. At dusk a new panic was occasioned by the discovery that bales of hay had been piled over and about all the large masses of subsistence stores on the landings, indicating the probability that it might become necessary during the night to torch to them, to prevent their falling into the hands of the enemy.

There was also great commotion among the crowds of contrabands, who have been found most efficient laborers, and who have been used to great advantage in the commissary and munition departments. They ed, and, on being assured by Colonel Ingalls the vengeance of their masters, went to work with renewed energy. Stores and munitions everywhere disappeared from the landing with great rapidity, and were being packed on the wharf-boats and vessels contiguous. The wives and children of the contrabands also soon made their appearance, and with bundles and babies took position on the canal boats as they were floated out in the stream.

The mail steamer, which should have left for Fortress Monroe at seven o'clock in the morning, was ordered to be detained, and at nine o'clock a dispatch was received that a general battle was progressing along the whole line, the enemy having renewed the chests of the paymasters, were brought on hospital boat. Some of the sutlers became so panic-stricken as to sell out their stocks at half-price, and hastened on ard the boat, whilst some determined to hold on and take the chances. That there was an intention on the part of General McClellan to evacuate the soon as his movements in front should be perfected there was no doubt, but whether as a necessity or a strategic movement could not at that time be foreseen.

The wounded from the fight which im mediately ensued represented it to have been a most terrific encounter, the enemy in conjunction with the evident movements towards a speedy evacuation, bewildered the speculations of the uninitiated, but Colonel Ingalls, under whose directions the evacuation was progressing, moved about as mediately filled up and they moved forward most determined as a summer of the evacuation was progressing, moved about as mediately filled up and they moved forward most determined as a summer of the evacuation with the evident movements coming out from Richmond upon them in such dense masses that the shell and grape poured into them as they advanced made great gaps in their lines, which were immediately filled up and they moved forward coolly as a summer's morning.

The morning train brought down the gratifying news that the forward movements of Gen. Hooker had been entirely successwhich were destructive on both sides, but when Gen. Porter ordered a bayonet charge they retreated in double-quick, though Gen. Porter pursued them but a

The enemy again rallied and approached our lines a second time, when the same terrible slaughter ensued; this time their artillery being better served was more effective in the ranks of our men. On coming to close quarters they were again repulsed and driven back a still greater distance, this twice fought battle ground being literally strewn with the dead and dying. General Porter then a second time fell back to his position and awaited nearly an hour for the enemy to renew the assault. They, however, finally came on in increased num hers, having been largely re-enforced, and were again received with shell and grape, eausing great chasms in their ranks, and one poor fellow, who had lost his arm, assured me that he saw the loose arms and portions of the bodies of the enemy making gyrations through the air. A third time the enemy bore down most brayely and determinedly on our lines, and this conflict was the most severely contested of the whole. on Friday afternoon. STATEMENT OF A PATMASTER.

In conversation with a paymaster, who was with General Porter's division, when the battle commenced, I have a very full confirmation of the statement of this gallant soldier. He says that being anxious for the safety of the large amount of treasure in his possession, he asked instruc-tions, and was told to proceed on towards Savage Station on the Richmond side of the Chickahominy, in company with the waron train then moving in the limit of the A FIENDISH ASSASSIN wagon train then moving in that direction with the knapsacks of the men and all the aluables from the various camps of the division. He joined the train and moved on, and describes the artillery reserves stationed along the road to protect the retiring of the right wing of the army across the Chickahominy. He says it was a most orderly movement, conducted slowly and steadily, and that the only evidence of panic was among some teamsters, who threatened to break their lines, but were who drew on them, and were ordered to blow out the brains of the first man who deserted his post or disobeyed the orders of the guards. This gentleman left the Savage Station, south of the Chickahominy, at 7 o'clock on Saturday morning, and states that during the night the entire right wing of the army passed over the river in perfect order, not losing a wagon of the train, and only leaving such portion of their camps as was not deemed worth removing as they retired to their new lines. There had been no fight-ing during the night, though at five o'clock on Saturday morning some heavy cannon ading was in progress on the extreme left, towards the James river, which soon ceased, owever, and at 7 o'clock all was again niet. The railroad was in operation all light on Friday after the battle, and the last train that left for the White House took its departure at 7 o'clock, and met no

WASHINGTON, June 29, 1862. Since closing my letter from the White House, I find myself very unexpectedly in Washington City, and in possession of most reliable information from the White House and other points on the Peniusula, nearly s day later than are contained in my letter. END OF THE WHITE HOUSE.

It appears that the telegraphic communi-cation between the White House and Gen-eral McClellan was not broken until near 1 o'clock, on Saturday, and then the wire was cut at Dispatch Station, eleven miles out Tunstall's Station, four miles out, was in our posession until four o'clock in the afternoon at which hour the operator at the White House heard a strange signal coming over the wire. On going to the instrument he was heralded with what the Federal soldiers call the rebel national salute: "I say, O you Yankee of This was the sig-nal given for the final evacuation, when a portion of the infantry forces immediately embarked on steamboats in waiting for them, the last of the transports was moved off by the steamings, and the few articles scattered about on shore, even some damaged hay, was fired. The whole was of very small value, and thus, of the many millions of property here a few days ago, perhaps not $5,000 was destroyed. In the midst of this closing scene of the beautiful Chickahominy region, I regret to have to state that some vandal set fire to the White House, and it was entirely con-sumed. This, doubtless, arose from the ridiculous teachings of a recent grave Senatorial debate on this little cottage.

The enemy made his appearance in considerable force at the White House, about seven o'clock on Saturday evening, and although he found neither bread for man nor hay for beasts, was welcomed with heavy showers of grape-shot from the three gunhoats which were ranged along in front of the landing. They were supposed to be thirty thousand strong, and, unless they brought their haversacks well supplied, must have gone supperless to bed. In the best of times, I found starvation to stare me in the face at White House, and I hope the rebels found no better fare. RETIREMENT OF THE TROOPS.

The Tribune's correspondence, after stat-ing we were outnumbered by the rebels, in-dulges in the following: When loyal New York regiments lifted from their feet by the fire of rebel brigades, cry out of their wounds and death for help, when the choicest of New England, Michigan, and Pennsylvania troops, outnumbered in front and on their flanks by whole divisions of the enamy, beg for re-enforcements, I say that the blackest crime that power can commit is to stalk upon the field of peril, and say, Soldiers, I have no faith in your

Washington; July 2. The correspondence regarding the raising of a negro brigade was laid before the House to-day. It is rather lengthy, and portions of it caused considerable laughter. Gen. Hunter says to the first question: I therefore reply that no regiment of fugitive slaves has been or is being organized in this department. There is, however, a fine regiment of persons whose late masters are fu-gitive rebels—men who every where fly before the approach of the national flag leaving their servants behind them to shift as best they can for themselves. So far, indeed, are the loyal persons compo this regiment from seeking to avoid the presence of their late owners, that they are now one and all working with remarkable industry to place themselves in a position to join in full and effective pursuit of their ugacious and traitorous proprietors.

To the second question he says: The instructions given to Brig. Gen. T. W. Sherman by Secretary Cameron, and ploy all loyal persons offering their services in defense of the Union and for the suppression of this rebellion, in any matter I might see fit, or that circumstances might call for. There was no restriction as to the character or color of persons to be em-ployed, or the nature of the employment, whether civil or military, in which their services shall be used; I conclude, therefore, that I have been authorized to enlist fugitive slaves as soldiers, should any such be Liverpool of the British steamship Africa. found in the department. The Times has detailed reports of the The Times has detailed reports of the battles of Thursday, Friday and Saturday, from which it appears that the right wing of our army, about 20,000 men, was attacked Friday by a rebel force not less than 50,000, and after a gallant fight, our troops crossed the Chickahominy in order. On Saturday night and Sunday our whole left wing, under Heintzelman, Keys, and Sumner, fell back along the line of the railroad and the Williamsburg road, and marched to the lames river.

ourse there was tremendous fighting durg these movements, and heavy loss on th sides.

The Times' correspondent states that McClellan established his headquarters on Monday on Malvern Hill, one mile back of Turkey Island Bend. At 2 o'clock Monday our firing was heard for two hours in the direction of White Oak Swamp, where Ayres was holding the rebels in check, who were attempting to cross.

An immense force of rebel artiflery and cavalry, both from Richmond, then appeared on our left, when Porter's and Keye's command went to resist the enemy. A terrific fight ensued and it became evident that the overpowering force of rebels was gaining ground, when the gunboats Galena and Aroostook opened with the 24 pounders upon the enemy. The fight continued till dark diminishing away into occasional musket shots.

Miss Lotty Hough, who appeared at the Howard Athenœum a few weeks since, and gained considerable applause in her personations of impossible Yankee girls, had secured her passage in the steamer, when her husband, hearing of it, went to the Chief of Police and represented that she was no compos mentis, and that he wanted to have her arrested. The Chief knew nothing of the facts in the case, and therefore sent an intelligent officer with the husband to investigate it. Miss Hough was found in the saloon of the steamer, her husband pointed her out to the officer, and directed him roughly, in the presence of others, to arrest "that woman." Miss Hough immediately "that woman." Miss Hough immediately went on shore at the request of the officer, and explained to him that she had been obliged to support her husband for the past ten years, and that she was now going to England to escape from his persecutions. The husband meanwhile was engaged in dragging some of his wife's baggage ashore, and in informing the people around him that he was going to have Miss Hough arrested. After hearing the story, the officer told Miss Hough that he had no authority to detain her, that she appeared capable of taking care of herself, and that capable of taking care of herself, and that she could depart in the steamer and take her baggage with her, which she accordingly did; and her husband was left on the wharf without money enough to pay his passage in the ferry back to the city.

NEW YORK, July 8. The World's correspondence arrived here from the field of battle before Richmond at o'clock P. M. Tuesday.

He says McClellan's advance was three miles northwest of Harding Landing, and within fifteen miles of Richmond. The enemy was terribly repulsed in the battle of Monday, which was sanguinary in the extreme. We were attacked at four different points, and summarily repulsed the enemy at three o'clook, when they pressed Heintzelman's left very hard, but Sumner went to his relief, and they were finally repulsed with great slaughter. Heintzelman captured 8 guns and a whole brigade of rebels sixteen hundred strong, including their Colonels, Pendleton, of Louisiana, ex-Congressman Lamar, of Georgia, and Mc-Gowan, of South Carolina. All of our seige guns had been safely re-moved to the river, except, one which was dismounted. Our transpertation was all safely removed but 75 wagons, which were burned in camp.

The enemy's attack on Monday was fierce in the extreme. Kearney, Hooke, Richardson and McCall participated.

The reserve, under McCall, suffered, nevertheless.

and Reynolds were probably taken prisoners, as they were missing Tuesday night; Gen. Meade severely wounded; Generals Burns and Brooke, slightly. Stonewall Jackson was undoubtedly killed, all the prisoners corroborating it. General J. R. Anderson, of the Tredegar Iron Works, was mortally wounded in the action at Savage's Station.

During the fight on Monday, the gunboats Galena and Aroostook shelled the river road with splendid effect. The enemy attempted to advance by this road, but re-tired precipitately as soon as the gunboats McClellan's army, though greatly exhausted from lack of rest and food were still in excelleet spirits, and every drop of blood will flow before any disaster shall befall our army. There have been a great many wounded prisoners taken on both sides.

Our informant says Gen. McClellan and his staff all agree that the present position of our army is far more advantageous as a base of operations against Richmond, than that hitherto occupied. The gunboats can now be brought to bear, and materially aid in carrying on the work. Some of our regiments have suffered terribly, while others have suffered but little. Our left wing was engaged yesterday, July 1st, up to 2 o'clock, with the enemy, mostly with artillery. The enemy's force, gathered from prisoners who were with Beauregard's Western army, was 150,000 men, whilst our effective force did not exceed FORTRESS MONROE, July 1. By Mail-The loss of the enemy in killed and wounded yesterday (Monday) is said to have been not less than 8,000, but we have no definite statement on either side. Gen. Shield's army arrived here this morning and at once proceeded to the James River. They came in vessels via Annapolis.

Washington, July 3. A dispatch from Gen. McClellan to the War Department, from Berkley's Bar, July 2d, 5:30 p. M., states that he has succeeded in getting his army to that place on the banks of the James river, and has lost but one gun, which had to be abandoned last evening (Tuesday), because it broke down; that an hour and a half ago the rear of the wag-on train was within a mile of the camp, and only one wagon was abandoned; that we had a severe battleyesterday (Tuesday), and that we beat the enemy badly, the men fighting even better than before. The men are in good spirits, and reinforcements from Washington have arrived.

In our issue of Sunday morning we emitted to mention the arrival of the little steamer Hamilton Bells, from Cumberland river, with a cargo of floar and sundies. The Bells is well known to most of our river men as former Arkanasa river packet. She went up the river ch an adventure, a little more than a year ago, was caught above the blockade, and this is har first return to her accustomed haunts. The Saline, also, has just returned here from a somewhat protracted crille at the North. The Saline went down the river ad your two ago to obtain a quantity of cotton from Clark's plantation at the foot of Island 66, but while lying there was waited upon by a crowd of men from the Arkanass side of the river, who positively forbade the shipment of the cotton, and size was consequently obliged to return without it. PRIVATE OPINION OF THE TIMES ON THE UNION ARMY.

[From the Philadelphia Bulletin.] A private letter, received by agentleman of this city from a foreigner of distinction (not an Englishman), resident in London, contains the following interesting passages: "London, June 10.—The great successes of the Federal arms have filled me with strong hopes of seeing the rebellion soon put down. We have, it is true, by the last received accounts, news of some reverses which Banks' army had sustained, and which seem to have created quite a panic at Washington. I think, however, such misfortunes must be regarded as mere accidents, and of no moment to the eventful issue of the contest. If the North holds as well together for a few months longer as it has hitherto done, the South must, I think,

One of the editors of the Times, with whom I talked the other day about America, admitted that, from the accounts they had, and, I suppose, relying chiefly on what their former correspondent, Mr. Russell, has told them, the North possessed, at present, an army such as no power ever be-fore had—an army which, in point of the character of the men and their complete equipment, was without a parallel, and the tremendous engine of war any State had ever created.

"I was delighted to hear such a testimony to the energy and power of the North, from quarter so strongly prejudiced against the Union. The Times has certainly done a great deal of mischief by its spiteful articles against America; but it ought not to make you suppose that the general feeling of this country is against America, and that the English people would hail with joy a breaking up of the Union and the estab-lishment of the Southern Confederation. Such sentiments are only entertained by aristocracy, some prominent statesmen and politicians; but the general feeling of the country is, I am convinced, quite in the other direction. And to be fair, it must be admitted, I think, that the Government, whatever may be its feelings and wishes, has observed a strict and honest neutrality, which in its effects has been far more damaging to the South than prejudicial to the North. If some vessels have broken the blockade and supplied the Southerners with arms and ammunitions of war, only think of the quantity of warlike stores regularly exported to the North."

A HINT THAT MAY BE GENERALLY TAKEN .-- A friend informs us that at a concert which took place in a town that shall be nameless, last Friday evening, a gentleman in the audience rose up just as the third piece on the programme had been performed, and said:
"Mr. Conductor, will you oblige me, sir, by requesting your vocalists either to sing louder or to sing in whispers, as there is conversation going on close by where I sit that is conducted in such a loud tone as to entirely hinder my enjoyment of the music.

There was an extremely quiet and attentive audience in the hall during the rest of HEINTZELMAN'S OPINION .- A correspondent of the New York Tribune thinks the probabilities in front of Richmond favor delay. He gives his reasons thus:

"Because, first, as I heard rough-andready Heintzelman say 'We've got 'em foul sure; and what the d-l is the use, Senator (I'm not the man he was addressing), of risking anything till the last man is just where we want him?' And, secondly, a few days' delay will add to the certainty of the success of the plan of attack.'

A SHARP TRICE.—At St. Paul, Minnesota, the other day, an officer arrested a man for fast driving, and had him fined five dolthe officer to get into his buggy and drive down to his house and get the funds. Accommodating officer did so, but found, to his cost, that the horse wouldn't go slow, and that he was compelled himself to drive faster than the city ordinance allowed. As a consequence, when he got back to the police office, he was fined an equal amount, which he paid, a wiser man.

The great difficulty with all other old-style Machis too much complication, requiring so much consisting adjustment, and such an amount of mechanical sand ingountly to use them to advantage, as to ret them of little comparative value.

But the Sewing Machines manufactured by Greman & True are not liable to these objections, as person, on even a moment's examination, will read discover. They will do more and better work than other Machine ever offered to the public, making most beautiful lock-stitch, aince on both sides.
